

IT'S HARDER FACE TO FACE

1. LUBOŠ AND BARU

Hi, how are you?

Já super. A co ti je? Seš nemocnej?

Well, actually, yes.

Jeez, I was afraid you had some serious disease.

Maybe it would be enough if you went out more. You're locked up at home all the time. No wonder you're depressed.

These psychiatrists and psychologists, they aren't even real doctors. If I were you, I wouldn't do it. Everyone knows that people only go to a shrink to get attention. You're not like that, are you? Better do something with yourself.

Everyone knows this, or not?

Excuses. Not at all depression. In fact, it's just laziness. I also get depressed sometimes. Like when the weather is bad and I have to go walk the dog. But I just have to overcome that.

Everyone can study at a college these days. Try using common sense!

To be honest, not great. What about you?

No, vlastně jo.

I was diagnosed with depression.

It is a serious disease. I have to take medications and see a psychiatrist and a psychologist.

That probably won't help. The doctor said it was something with my brain.

Do you know anything about depression?

I don't know, it's not that simple.

But that doesn't seem like depression. Depression is a long-term disease. I think you're talking about something else. And psychiatrists and psychologists are professionals, they have studied for it.

If you think so.

IT'S HARDER FACE TO FACE

2. INKA AND PAṬA

Hi Paṭa. I want to tell you something. I decided it was time for everyone to know.

I'm into both boys and girls.

Yup, that's right.

I thought we agreed to be just friends. I'm quite disappointed in you.

I just started seeing someone so these jokes of yours are pretty inappropriate.

No, it's a guy. His name is Tomy.

I am. I'm just dating a guy right now.

Bisexual means that I like both girls and guys. It doesn't matter who I'm dating.

His Facebook is Tomy Mohapi. Thanks to him, I finally found the courage to tell everyone how I really feel.

Hey! Don't talk about him like that. The word you've used is very insulting. He's just Tomy.

I didn't think you were racist.

It's not like that at all. And you know what? I don't think I want to talk with you anymore.

That sounds serious. Well, tell me..

Like bisexual?

Does that mean you might be up for a threesome with me?

That was just a joke.

Is it a girl?

So you're not bisexual then?

But how can you be bisexual when you have a boyfriend?

If you think so. So who are you dating?

Wait a moment; are you saying you're going out with this coon?

Well that's just great. You reject me but you sleep with that black dude.

What do you mean racist? You chose a black dude over a normal white guy. But I get it, he must be better endowed than me.

Because I'm white? Then who's the racist here...

IT'S HARDER FACE TO FACE

3. RENEK AND LUDY

Hi, I saw your post in the photo-group.

I don't think you should brag about those photos that much.

The composition is not perfect and it's not really well focused.

I'm not saying it's totally bad, just that I wouldn't publish it.

I would be rather ashamed of photos like that.

I would definitely not be happy with photos like that. Certainly, other professionals will think the same. They'll hate it and maybe they'll even put you in one of those groups where people shame photographic garbage.

Yeah, a little modesty never hurts ;)

Hey. And what do you think about it?

You think they're not okay?

Yeah, it was a bit of an experiment, but I thought it ended up pretty good.

I wanted to inspire other people who are not professional photographers yet.

Well, you're a pro. I'm just a beginner. I was happy with the result and a few people already commented that they liked it.

I guess you're right. I'll better take it down.